

Done! This chart represents how you relate to different body functions. What does it mean?

From what we know so far, it seems like people vary a lot on these dimensions. However, we don't exactly know what these differences mean yet (hence why we are doing this research).

It seems like it is neither good or bad to score high on any of these, and that there is no "normal": everybody is different!